

ELEVATING CONDOMINIUM MANAGEMENT

ACMO

Association of Condominium
Managers of Ontario

WHO WE ARE

Your Community of Condominium Management Professionals

The Association of Condominium Managers of Ontario (ACMO) is Ontario's only professional industry association dedicated to supporting, educating, and promoting condominium managers and management firms. In 1977, a group of enlightened managers recognized the need to professionalize the relatively new field of condominium management and ACMO was born.

Since then, ACMO has led the way in organizing and building the industry through the development of condominium management education and best practices, professional designations, and ethical standards.

We are the expert voice of condominium management representing a growing community of professionals dedicated to pursuing a higher standard of excellence in condominium management.

WHAT WE DO

Elevate condominium management

ACMO has cultivated a vibrant community for condominium professionals that offers connection, knowledge, and support along with a level of education and training that goes beyond the minimum licensing requirements. ACMO members benefit from a wide array of programs and services including:

- Education and Events: ACMO conducts a variety of in-person and virtual events throughout the year including educational seminars and webinars, social outings, and a series of continuing education courses so members can build their knowledge base and stay current with best practices, trends, and issues in condominium management.
- Professional Designations: ACMO offers the industry leading Registered Condominium Manager (RCM®) designation for managers, and the ACMO 2000 Certification program for management companies, and together they represent the gold standard in our industry. Our designation holders abide by a robust Code of Ethics and are publicly promoted through our online registries so owners can easily check that they have the best management for their condominium.
- Networking: Condominium management can be a challenging and lonely profession at times, so ACMO connects like-minded managers, management firms, industry experts and suppliers so they can share knowledge and support and be the best they can be.
- Resources & Expertise: Through our best of class CM magazine, weekly e-newsletter, supplier directory, comprehensive website, downloadable technical resources and videos, exclusive member portal and social media channels, members tap into a wealth of timely condominium management information, resources, and expertise available whenever needed.
- Advocacy: For more than 40 years ACMO has been the driving force in building, promoting, and advancing the interests of the condominium management profession and our members. Through ongoing communication and consultations with all levels of government we help shape the industry's regulatory framework.
- Awareness and Promotion: Throughout the year we leverage our numerous media channels and undertake promotional campaigns to raise awareness of our professional designations and communicate the added value our professionals bring to condominium communities. In addition, ACMO recognizes the best our industry has to offer through our annual ACMO Awards program.
